Geoff, absolutely, if the photos are useful in anyway, please feel free to use them as you see fit. Happy to contribute, and this kind of analysis is very educational for me, as well. Thank you,
Scott

I meant to add too that Alison Newberry's photo doesn't seem to show any yellow in the vent area.

Thanks, Scott. Do I have your permission then to add these to the IORC file? Your photos show the back streaking nicely. I am thinking that the yellow in the vent may be a lighting issue, though I did notice it in the field yesterday, at least at the sides of the vent.

Geoff, I saw your recent comment to Mike Ferguson on FB.

Here is a small album of photos I took yesterday, which I'm sharing in case they might help with any further analysis of the (possible?) Montrose Townsend's Warbler:
