The very good sound recordings are unequivocally of a Kirtland's Warbler and the description and photos confirm this.

Comments: Pictures are weak, distant and not useful to me, but they do supplement the audio in that there was a bird present that looked like a Kirtland's Warbler. The written description is weak. What makes the case is the audio recording. Good for the reporter to have gotten that in addition to the photo. I may not have accepted the record if only the photos were submitted.
